

Born and raised in New Orleans, Louisiana, Tracey Dennig began dancing at the early age of two. Deciding she wanted to pursue her dance education, Tracey traveled to New York and graduated with a BFA in Dance from the University at Buffalo where she was a member of the prestigious Zodiaque Dance Company all four years. After graduation, Tracey traveled throughout the United States performing principle and ensemble roles Off Broadway and at numerous regional theaters across the country. In addition to performing, Tracey has also been recognized for her teaching, and was the honorable recipient of the Bachna Scholarship from Dance Masters of America's Teachers Training School. Tracey has also taught, judged, and choreographed on both the Regional and National level for several competition and convention circuits where she has received recognition for both her outstanding classes and choreography.